Dear Students,

At Tulane, we strive to foster a sense of belonging by building an inclusive community that supports an environment of equity, diversity, compassion and respect.

A recent online opinion article by a Tulane student has caused much distress, outrage and pain, especially in light of increasing instances of antisemitic rhetoric and violence throughout our country. Tulane strongly condemns antisemitism, anti-Blackness, and all forms of bias and discrimination.

The Office of Student Conduct is reviewing this matter. Student records, including conduct records, are federally protected and this process is confidential.

While the importance of free expression on a university campus cannot be overstated, words that run counter to our core values impact our community.

We acknowledge the pain these words have caused and urge students or any member of our community looking for support to call 504-920-9900.

Sincerely,

Erica Woodley

Associate Vice President & Dean of Students, Student Resources and Support Services
