Section 2. Examples of Violations to the Student Code of Conduct

Section 2. Examples of Violations of the Student Code of Conduct

The responsible administrator for this section is the Office of Community Standards. Student Affairs has approval authority.

2.0. Introduction

Any of the behaviors described in the Student Code of Conduct may constitute a violation of College practices or policies. The Student Code of Conduct does not comprehensively list all possible behaviors, activities, or situations that might constitute violations of the Student Code of Conduct. The Office of Community Standards will determine whether a particular behavior may constitute a violation depending on the circumstances and context in which that behavior occurred.

The College will not tolerate acts of retaliation (see Section 2.28.) against any individual who initiates a report or complaint to the College or who participates in any College adjudication process. Given the potential impact on individuals or the community, parties may be subject to Supportive, Temporary, or Emergency Measures (see Section 12).

2.1. Harm to Persons

Non-identity-based behaviors that are unwanted, uninvited, and unwelcome that unreasonably interfere with education and social opportunities.

Examples include, but are not limited to,

- Any conduct that causes physical harm, regardless of intent, or any conduct that endangers the health or safety of any person.
- Any conduct that threatens physical harm or any conduct that threatens to endanger the health or safety of any person.
- Any bullying, doxing, or intimidation of any person.
- Conduct or a pattern of conduct—not of a sex-based, gender-based, or sexual nature—including actions/behavior of a physical, verbal, graphic, written, or electronic nature which places any person in reasonable fear of physical harm or which harasses, bullies, or intimidates any person. For conduct of a sex-based, gender-based, or sexual nature, see Section 3, Interim Title IX Policy.

- Any public exposure, which includes deliberately and publicly exposing one's intimate body parts. Any public urination, defecation, or public sex acts.

Amherst College understands that slander, libel, defamation, and disparagement are harmful behaviors. These matters may not be resolvable by College processes; however, we can work to support a student navigating these matters. The College can work with community members to access resources that may resolve these types of matters.

Such participation includes, but is not limited to: filing a report under this policy; providing information to, or otherwise cooperating with, Student Affairs or another College department; or supporting an individual in the process of resolving an allegation of prohibited conduct. This policy's prohibition against retaliation applies to an individual reporting misconduct under this policy — even if the content of the report is later disproved — as long as the report was made in good faith. The College recognizes that: retaliation can take many forms; retaliation can be committed by an individual or a group; and reporting parties, responding parties, and witnesses can all perpetrate and/or be the subject of retaliatory behavior. Any Amherst College community member who believes that they have experienced retaliation is encouraged to report it to the Office of Community Standards as soon as possible.
