

Exhibit 14

From: Jun Xiao, Ph.D.

Email: [REDACTED]
[REDACTED]

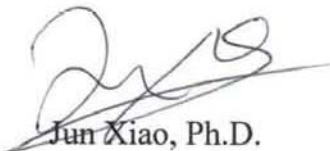

Oct. 26, 2007

Dear Mr. Herbst,

This is regarding your letter of 10/24/2007 ("the probation letter"). In the probation letter, you said your decision was made based on "a Dean, a faculty member, and multiple emails from students". However, in the probation letter, you did not say what they are complaining about on me. You only stated that I violated the rules Item C, D, K, and L that outlined in the Student Handbook. However, rules or regulations are a different thing from the evidence or supporting materials. The decision saying that a person violated some rules must be supported by some evident or supporting materials. In this case, the supporting materials are the complaints from "a Dean, a faculty member, and multiple emails from students". As the subject of your decision, I believe I have the right to know exactly what each person is complaining about. Please send me all the complaints which your decision has based on ("the complaints"). Please send me all the complaints IN WRITING. You may cross or wipe out complainers' names and emails addresses. Or, quote all these complaints with quotation marks (" ") and send them to me IN WRITING.

I accept email as a kind of in writing. Therefore, you may email me the complaints.

Sincerely Yours,

Jun Xiao, Ph.D.

---

A copy of above letter has been received by the Vice president office at 10/26/07 (Date) 10:45 A.M.

Sharon J. Hart (Signature)